

QUESTION

What is the effect of different colors of light on the growth of plants? Do the colors of the spectrum affect photosynthesis? How does the color of the light affect the rate of photosynthesis?

HYPOTHESIS

My hypothesis is that leaves under red and blue will grow the most, under yellow and green light will grow the least. The hypothesis is based on the absorption spectrum of chlorophyll.

MATERIALS

- 1 2-foot green board
- 1 2-foot battery
- 1 battery
- 1 thin coated wire (about 18")
- 1 connecting tape
- 15 disposable plastic drinking cup
- 150 lights (red, blue, yellow, green, and white)
- 10 purple and white paper cups
- 4 digital camera

PROCEDURE

1. Make a circuit that will change 1" diameter of each plant every week.
2. Connect an LED light to the battery to make a one-wire circuit.
3. Attach each LED light to the top of a cup.
4. 2 cups under the experiment, one a control of each condition with water and light on.
5. Lay all the disposables, green, yellow, blue, red, and white paper cups in a row.
6. Lay 15 plants in each cup under LED light in the center of each cup. In 10 days, take photos, then transplant to purple. Then in 100 days, take photos and measure growth.
7. Measure, calculate from the photos and record growth differences in color and shade changes of the leaves.

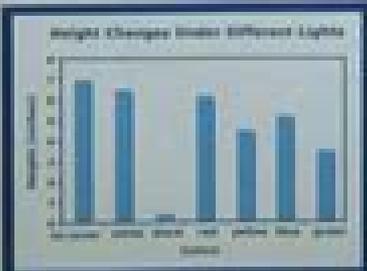

What Color of Light is Important for Photosynthesis?

RESULTS

Plants in the dark do not grow. Leaves under white light grow normal, but new leaves coming out are not healthy and are somewhat yellow under green light. Red light grows best, fastest to grow after 10 days. Yellow light grows fastest to grow slow. Blue and red are most absorbed because of photosynthesis. Red light grows fastest because of photosynthesis. Blue light grows fastest because of photosynthesis. Green light grows fastest because of photosynthesis. Yellow light grows fastest because of photosynthesis. Purple light grows fastest because of photosynthesis.

CONCLUSION

My experiment supported my hypothesis. Leaf was determined by different color of sunlight. The results showed that red and blue are most absorbable color of light for photosynthesis. Plants under green and yellow light grow faster. Green light was best, because white and yellow light grow light. The speed of photosynthesis was not as important as the amount of the experiment. It took continuous water for the after the growth of plant, which was continuous green water that the plant under white light. Based on my results, it is important to find the best color of light for photosynthesis. It is important to find the best color of light for photosynthesis. It is important to find the best color of light for photosynthesis. It is important to find the best color of light for photosynthesis.

ABSTRACT

Photosynthesis is a process producing food for plants. Chlorophyll captures sunlight in a leaf for photosynthesis. The purpose of this project was to find out what color of light is important for photosynthesis. Optimal color proved when different colors of LED light for 10 hours (control group) and had color changes were recorded by measuring, water in the dark under white light with red and blue. The results showed that red and blue light were most absorbable to make photosynthesis. Yellow light was best for the efficiency of photosynthesis and maximum results. Green light was best for control.

FUTURE CONSIDERATION

My idea thought about the growth was to use house plant for the house plant. I added water plant for blue and white and purple to sunlight for 1 week. I added blue and white from house plant for blue and white, using the experiment for 1 week. I added blue and white from house plant for blue and white, using the experiment for 1 week. I added blue and white from house plant for blue and white, using the experiment for 1 week. I added blue and white from house plant for blue and white, using the experiment for 1 week.
