- D. exhausting - ✓✓C. enjoyable

Which of the six main motivating factors in lifetime fitness is most important? Justify your response. - ✓✓The six main motivating factors in lifetime fitness are knowledge, discipline, support, time management, enjoyment, and success. Students should feel free to choose any of these factors to defend as most important so long as they can provide sufficient justification.

Grace goes to the doctor. The doctor tells Grace that while her chronological age is 24, her physiological age is 30. What factors could account for this discrepancy? - ✓✓Grace's advanced physiological age is a sign that her physical health has diminished since a healthy person should either have the same chronological and physiological age or a lower physiological age. The factors that could cause her physiological age to be greater than her chronological age include, among others, a poor diet, sedentary lifestyle, great amounts of stress, chronic illness, and other negative health factors.

Lifetime fitness is easy to maintain because it requires little effort. - ✓✓false

Which of the following statements about physiological age and chronological age is TRUE?
