Migration In World History:

Migration Michael H. Fisher, 2013-11-04 Migration began with our origin as the human species and continues today Each chapter of world history features distinct types of migration The earliest migrations spread humans across the globe Over the centuries as our cultures societies and technologies evolved in different material environments migrants conflicted merged and cohabited with each other creating entering and leaving various city states kingdoms empires and nations During the early modern period migrations reconnected the continents including through colonization and forced migrations of subject peoples while political concepts like citizen and alien developed In recent history migrations changed their character as nation states and transnational unions sought in new ways to control the peoples who migrated across their borders This volume will explore the process of migration chronologically and also at several levels from the illuminating example of the migration of a individual community to larger patterns of the collective movements of major ethnic groups to the more abstract study of the processes of emigration migration and immigration This book will concentrate on substantial migrations covering long distances and involving large numbers of people It will intentionally balance evidence from the now diverse people s of the world for example by highlighting an exemplary migration for each of the six chapters that highlights different trajectories and by keeping issues of gender and socio economic class salient wherever appropriate Further as a major theme the volume will consider how technology the environment and various polities have historically shaped human migration Exciting new scholarship in the several fields inherent in this topic make it a particularly valuable and timely project

Global Convict Labour, 2015-06-24. Global Convict Labour offers a global history of convict labour across many of the regimes of punishment that have appeared from Antiquity to the present including transportation prisons workhouses and labour camps. The editors essay surveys the available literature and sets the theoretical basis to approach the issue. The fifteen chapters explore the genealogies of convict labour and its relationships with coloniality and governmentality. The volume re establishes convict labour firmly within labour history as one of the entangled multiple labour relations that have punctuated human history. Similarly it places convictism back within migration history at large bridging the gap between the growing literature on convict transportation and research on slavery and other forms of free and bonded migration.
