

Corporal 15th Panzer Division North Africa 1941

Naturally, when the armoured units of the German Army transferred to the North African theatre, the black uniforms of European zones was no longer appropriate. Thus we tend to see armoured crews adopting the standard khaki uniforms of the Africa Corps, as seen here consisting of a khaki tunic with lighter open-neck shirt beneath, and breeches or straight trousers. Footwear is a pair of leather and made knee-high lace-up boots, which tended to be rejected for shorter, cooler boots in the arid desert conditions. Indeed, flexibility and customisation were the watchwords of desert dress. The baking temperatures meant that uniform codes were little enforced as each soldier adapted as best he could to the heat. This soldier wears army uniforms, but retains the death's-head collar insignia of the armoured forces, as a simple badge.

Captain Luftwaffe, Army Group Centre Ukraine 1942

Captain Hans Philipp, pictured here, was one of Germany's most highly decorated pilots on the Eastern Front. He was awarded the Swords to the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross with Oak Leaves for downing 82 Allied aircraft, and he would go on to take many more. However, such victories in Russia were offset by the chronic problems of supply and maintenance which had beset the Luftwaffe by the end of 1941, as well as improvements in Soviet fighter aircraft and tactics. Captain Philipp's decoration is displayed by the cross around his neck, while the yellow collar patches show the oak leaves and acorns (the three silver wings on the same patches and the two yellow pipers on the shoulder straps indicate the rank). A flying badge is worn on the left breast, and the yellow colouration in the insignia refers to the arm-of-service.
