

Always install your thermostat!
This user manual is for the control and programming functions of an approved unit.

WHAT IS A PROGRAMMER?

...an appliance for thermostats (as recommended by the Energy Saving Trust)

Programmer also acts as an ON and OFF time clock. This enables you to control heating and allows the user to set it up to give any extra energy when there are extra hot water and heating requirements at a given time. For the use of ON and OFF this appliance you can change the time requirement for hot water at either your whole heating system or for individual rooms. You can also set ON and OFF heating periods, or the programmer will be able to do this for the programmer that is used. Some units have a 7 day digital display and some of the digital display programmer have the standard 7-day time. Some models also incorporate added by programming to control heating, lighting or fans. They also include the manufacturer's instructions. The heating will not work if the programmer has not been installed correctly. The Programmer can also control the water heating on the wall for the water heaters which has the water heater symbol on the front panel.

WHAT IS A ROOM THERMOSTAT?

...an appliance for thermostats (as recommended by the Energy Saving Trust)

A room thermostat controls the heating system or one of its zones. It acts by sending the air temperature, existing in the heating when the air temperature falls below the thermostat setting, a controlling call into the air temperature controller. Using a room thermostat single zoning will not make the room heat as you have this point the room heat as dependent on the design of the heating system. In contrast, the room thermostat systems, which have the setting after the valve for each room heat. Using a room thermostat to control zoning will result in the room being controlled in a fixed temperature, regardless of the room's volume and so will not be as good as programming the thermostat. The way to set and use your room thermostat is to set the room temperature using the air controller unit, and then use a programmer to set the room temperature to set the air controller to give you the heat. The way to set the air controller is to set the thermostat to give temperature - say 18°C - and then set the programmer to give you the room temperature set the thermostat. The user has to set the thermostat after the adjustment done the setting of each room and set programmer.

If your heating system is a boiler with radiators, they will usually be set to the room thermostat to control the whole house. So you can have different temperatures in different rooms by installing thermostat water valves. This is not ideal, as it is not easy. Why you should think a programmer that is dependent on the whole house. If you have this you can choose a single room setting to make sure the user the whole room is controlled. For secondary controlling it will be better by adjusting the flow.

Room thermostat with a time limit of up to 10 days for temperature, so they must not be used to control a radiator in a room. Heating should flow. However, with a radiator thermostat for the thermostat that is recommended.

Energy Efficiency and the Environment

Home energy use is responsible for more than 10% of the total UK carbon emissions which contribute to climate change. Heating and hot water systems based on fossil fuels account for 1/3 of the figure, so it is important to understand how you control hot water to maximize energy efficiency while maintaining your comfort.

The Programmer should be used in conjunction with appropriate temperature controls. In order to save energy the following general points should be observed:

1. Ensure your system contains a room thermostat and a hot water thermostat, and that both are set to appropriate temperature levels: typically 20°C for the room temperature and between 50 - 60°C for the hot water temperature.
2. Programme your heating and hot water to be off when you are out of the house. If you are concerned about possible frost damage to any exposed pipe work, it is advisable to fit a frost protection system - your installer will advise you about this.
3. Think about how you use your domestic hot water - if you have a storage system it is unnecessary to have the boiler on all the time when you are out of the house.
4. Consider the hot up time required for your central heating. Every home requires efficiency when the heating is switched on. Adjust the start time so that you are not cold when you get up in the morning. A shorter hot up time is required for other heating systems.
5. In the evening, when the house is up to temperature, it is often possible to switch off the heating up to an hour before you go to bed, without any noticeable reduction in comfort.
