

DESIGNING FOR ALL AGES & ABILITIES

Every design must meet the needs of a diverse range of potential bike riders. Across North America, however, many existing bike facility design practices are limited to only the widest range of age and ability. Many who might otherwise use a bike facility are often excluded by design choices that do not consider the needs of older adults, people with disabilities, and people with children. For example, many bike facilities are designed with steep ramps, high curbs, and narrow lanes that make it difficult for people with limited mobility to use the facilities. Designing for all ages and abilities is a key goal of the Urban Bikeway Design Guide.

Urban Bikeway Design Guide

National Association of City Transportation Officials

Third Edition

The third edition of the Urban Bikeway Design Guide provides updated guidance on how to design bike facilities that are safe, sustainable, and equitable for all ages and abilities. The guide is a key resource for transportation planners, engineers, and designers. It provides a comprehensive overview of the latest research and best practices for designing bike facilities that meet the needs of all users. The guide is organized into chapters that cover a wide range of topics, including route planning, facility design, and implementation. It also includes a glossary and a list of resources for further information.

OUR VISION

Cities where safe, sustainable, and equitable transportation systems connect communities to the resources they need to thrive.
