

How to Write a Film Review

Excerpts from the CD-ROM created by Barbara Csenge and Mike Bann for the Sprockets Education Programme

Writing a successful film review is like baking really great cookies. As a chef you need to pay attention to essential ingredients to make the recipe work but creativity and personal choices are what make the final result more tasty and interesting.

As a film review writer you must consider basic elements such as the story, character, technical details, sound/music and the theme or message in the film. A chef must think about who they are baking cookies for, a film reviewer, in the same way should pay attention to their audience, who will read the review and what their tastes and interests might be. Not every element must be discussed in every review. The film you are reviewing will determine the elements that should be discussed.

As well, decisions about film are based on what you prefer (fantasy or science fiction) and what is happening in your world. To write a successful film review it is important to lead or introduce your review with reasons for your choice and conclude with a summary of how all the elements, story, character, technical details, sound/music and the theme combine to make the film entertaining.

Lead/Introduction

A strong introduction is an important element to any writing assignment. Film reviewers call this a lead and use it to draw the reader into the body of their review. When writing a film review, a lead provides a broad picture of the importance of the film. This may have something to do with the actors, the novel from which the film is adapted, the theme or social issues dealt with in the film or some other noteworthy feature. Once this broad or general introduction is made the rest of the film review should deal with specific details in the film, (character, plot, technical elements, sound and theme). When you get to the end of your review after discussing specific details of character, plot, technical elements, sound and theme, the conclusion should relate back to what you discuss in your lead. The overall effect should be to "wrap up" your point of view regarding the film.

Plot

The plot is a pattern of events in the main story of the film. A film reviewer should summarize

Making Sense of Messages Mark Stoner, Sally J. Perkins, 2015-10-16 Using a developmental approach to the process of criticism Making Sense of Messages serves as an introduction to rhetorical criticism for communication majors The text employs models of criticism to offer pointed and reflective commentary on the thinking process used to apply theory to a message This developmental apprenticeship approach helps students understand the thinking process behind critical analysis and aids in critical writing

Tracing the Impact of First-Year Writing Laura Wilder, 2024-11-15 Tracing the Impact of First Year Writing presents the results of a large scale longitudinal study of college writers that explores the impact of a required first year writing course with a comparative approach not previously available Over five years Laura Wilder conducted 143 interviews with and collected 774 pages of writing from 58 students half of whom had taken a new first year writing course and half who had not Wilder found that while in many ways the experiences of both groups are comparable demonstrating how students receive valuable educations in rhetoric and writing from a variety of sources beyond a first year writing course students who took the first year writing course were much more likely to identify as writers This identification supported students use of writing in powerfully generative and knowledge building ways that they carried with them long after the course into other appropriate contexts In contrast to previous longitudinal studies of college writers undertaken at institutions with high prestige and resources Tracing the Impact of First Year Writing explores the role of writing at a regional public university and documents how students experiences with writing can be highly divergent across the curriculum and unequal across campuses Additionally this book includes the voices of students who do not identify as capable writers and have strongly negative emotional reactions to writing and writing instruction and adds empirical support to innovative calls in the field to transform the first year writing course into one that inspires students to reflectively consider writing itself

College Writing Toby Fulwiler, 1997 The second edition of College Writing is based on the premise that writing is a varied and imaginative process not a rigid adherence to a set of conventions Like the original text it continually exhorts students to find and celebrate their own voice Indeed it is this affirmation of individual creativity that sets College Writing apart from other process oriented rhetorics Among the book's new features are an up to date electronic reference section expanded discussions on research writing strategies new presentations on argumentative and interpretive writing and a review of creative revision techniques

The Internet and New Social Formation in China Weiyu Zhang, 2016-03-22 There are billions of internet users in China and this number is continually growing This book looks at the various purposes of this internet use and provides a study about how the entertainment consuming users form into publics through the mediation of technologies in the era of network society It questions how individuals mediated by new information and communication technologies come together to form new social categories The book goes on to investigate how public's is formed in the era of network society with particular focus on how fans become publics in a society that follows the logic of network Using online surveys and in depth interviews this book provides a rich description of the process of constructing a new social formation in contemporary China
