

INTRODUCTION TO NETWORKING & NETWORK DEVICES

Basics of Networking

A computer network consists of a collection of computers, printers and other equipment that is connected together so that they can communicate with each other. The figure below gives an example of a network in a school comprising of a local area network or LAN connecting computers with each other, the internet, and various servers.

Broadly speaking, there are two types of network configuration, peer-to-peer networks and client/server networks.

Peer-to-peer networks are more commonly implemented where less than ten computers are involved and where strict security is not necessary. All computers have the same status, hence the term 'peer', and they communicate with each other on an equal footing. Files, such as word processing or spreadsheet documents, can be shared across the network and all the computers on the network can share devices, such as printers or scanners, which are connected to any one computer.
