Life Science September 2013 Preparatory Examination:

The Vaccine Race Meredith Wadman, 2017-02-07 A real jewel of science history brims with suspense and now forgotten catastrophe and intrigue Wadman's smooth prose calmly spins a surpassingly complicated story into a real tour de force The New York Times Riveting The Vaccine Race invites comparison with Rebecca Skloot's 2007 The Immortal Life of Henrietta Lacks Nature The epic and controversial story of a major breakthrough in cell biology that led to the conquest of rubella and other devastating diseases Until the late 1960s tens of thousands of American children suffered crippling birth defects if their mothers had been exposed to rubella popularly known as German measles while pregnant there was no vaccine and little understanding of how the disease devastated fetuses In June 1962 a young biologist in Philadelphia using tissue extracted from an aborted fetus from Sweden produced safe clean cells that allowed the creation of vaccines against rubella and other common childhood diseases Two years later in the midst of a devastating German measles epidemic his colleague developed the vaccine that would one day wipe out homegrown rubella The rubella vaccine and others made with those fetal cells have protected more than 150 million people in the United States the vast majority of them preschoolers The new cells and the method of making them also led to vaccines that have protected billions of people around the world from polio rabies chicken pox measles hepatitis A shingles and adenovirus Meredith Wadman's masterful account recovers not only the science of this urgent race but also the political roadblocks that nearly stopped the scientists She describes the terrible dilemmas of pregnant women exposed to German measles and recounts testing on infants prisoners orphans and the intellectually disabled which was common in the era These events take place at the dawn of the battle over using human fetal tissue in research during the arrival of big commerce in campus labs and as huge changes take place in the laws and practices governing who owns research cells and the profits made from biological inventions It is also the story of yet one more unrecognized woman whose cells have been used to save countless lives With another frightening virus measles on the rise today no medical story could have more human drama impact or urgency than The Vaccine Race

Food and Cooking

Skills Education Anita Tull, 2018-01-29 Food and Cooking Skills Education FCSE is a complex mix of policy and practicality educational theory and pedagogy classroom and government policy This book shows how FCSE has been at the centre of a tussle between education and policy for decades It reviews how FCSE has grappled with various significant issues of concern that threaten to marginalise it and pose problems for educational practicalities as expectations are increased but resources are squeezed It assesses the debate about the significance and importance of acquiring practical food and cooking skills in a society where the purchase of ready made food has become commonplace and public knowledge of where our food comes from is noticeably lacking This has contributed to the escalating incidence of diet related diseases and the attendant cost to society and threatened environmental sustainability In turn governments have reacted by proposals to make practical cooking skills a statutory National Curriculum subject as part of the armoury for tackling such costs Based on detailed research conducted across England and Wales as well as comparisons with thirty five other countries or states the author makes recommendations for policy to manage this challenge facing contemporary society
