

GENETICS

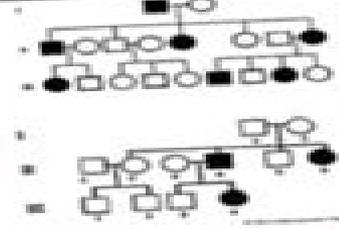

Study Guide

450 In a certain population, the gene for red hair is recessive (rr), while the normal allele is dominant (R). How many alleles do you have for this gene? How many alleles do you have for all the other genes in your genome?

451 In a family, both parents have brown hair and they are both heterozygous for this trait. They have three children, and none have red hair. What is the probability of producing another child, and what is the probability that the child will have red hair? Explain why you think this is the case.

452 What is the probability of a child being born with a certain trait, given the parents' genotypes? Explain why you think this is the case.

453 In the pedigree at left, determine the genotype of each individual. Explain why you think this is the case. (Assume that the trait is controlled by a single gene.)

454 In the pedigree at right, determine the genotype of each individual. Explain why you think this is the case. (Assume that the trait is controlled by a single gene.)

Includes pedigrees and complex patterns of inheritance (X-linked, multiple alleles, codominance, incomplete dominance).

455 What are the two forms of chromosomes? What are the two main sex chromosomes?

456 In fruit flies, eye color is a sex-linked trait. The gene for red eyes is located on the X chromosome. Red eyes (R) are dominant to white eyes (r). Cross a heterozygous red-eyed female fruit fly with a white-eyed male fruit fly.

457 What percentage of their offspring would have red eyes? What percentage of their offspring would be carriers for red eyes? Explain why you think this is the case.

458 Provide evidence that this is a pedigree for an autosomal trait, and not a sex-linked trait.

459 Humans can be black, gray, or white. What type of inheritance does this demonstrate? Cross a black male with a white female. Determine the phenotypic percentages of their offspring.

460 Offspring can be black, white, or intermediate. What type of inheritance does this demonstrate? Cross a white female with a black male. Determine the phenotypic percentages of their offspring.

461 Human blood types are genetically determined by three alleles: I^A, I^B, and i. Type A and type B are codominant with each other, and i is recessive. A male has blood type AB and a female has blood type B. They have a child with blood type O. What are the genotypes of their parents? What are the genotypes of their offspring? What are the phenotypic percentages of their offspring? Explain why you think this is the case.

462 Human blood types are genetically determined by three alleles: I^A, I^B, and i. Type A and type B are codominant with each other, and i is recessive. The gene for human color is controlled by two alleles: B and b. Cross a heterozygous male with a heterozygous female. Determine the phenotypic percentages of their offspring. Explain why you think this is the case.

463 In a population, the gene for red hair is recessive (rr), while the normal allele is dominant (R). How many alleles do you have for this gene? How many alleles do you have for all the other genes in your genome?
