Gettysburg Address

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this globe, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a national cemetery, so that those who here gave their lives might have a final resting place. It is for us the living, rather than the dead, that we here dedicate this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, can never forget what they did here. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us — that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave their lives — that here we resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain — that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom — and that this government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.
