Bamidis, 2010-05-28 Over the past three decades the exploding number of new technologies and applications introduced in medical practice often powered by advances in biosignal processing and biomedical imaging created an amazing account of new possibilities for diagnosis and therapy but also raised major questions of appropriateness and safety The accelerated development in this field alongside with the promotion of electronic health care solutions is often on the basis of an uncontrolled diffusion and use of medical technology The emergence and use of medical devices is multiplied rapidly and today there exist more than one million different products available on the world market Despite the fact that the rising cost of health care partly resulting from the new emerging technological applications forms the most serious and urgent problem for many governments today another important concern is that of patient safety and user protection issues that should never be compromised and expelled from

Berrino,International Agency for Research on Cancer,1995 This book is a compilation and discussion of data on the survival of cancer patients in 12 European countries Measures of incidence survival and mortality are critical to the interpretation of data on progress in the fight against cancer and in the evaluation of the overall effectiveness of cancer control programmes Randomized controlled clinical trials have shown many modern protocols for cancer treatment to be more effective than earlier treatments but until now comparable population based survival figures have rarely been available EURO CARE is a concerted action among European cancer registries aimed at estimating and comparing the survival of cancer patients in different European populations The rationale behind this project is to optimize the comparability of survival data by using an agreed and standard definition of the diseases for which survival is to be compared and by taking due account of basic demographic variables The EURO CARE Working Group succeeded in collecting checking and editing data on cancer survival from 30 cancer registries in 12 countries and established a database covering some 800 000 cancer patients in the period 1978 85 and followed up to the end of 1990 This database forms the raw material for this monograph Mortality Statistics Great Britain.
