Coventry,Thora Tenbrink,John Bateman,2009-04-23 This book considers how people talk about the location of objects and places Spatial language has occupied many researchers across diverse fields such as linguistics psychology GIScience architecture and neuroscience However the vast majority of work in this area has examined spatial language in monologue situations and often in highly artificial and restricted settings Yet there is a growing recognition in the language research community that dialogue rather than monologue should be a starting point for language understanding Hence the current zeitgeist in both language research and robotics AI demands an integrated examination of spatial language in dialogue settings The present volume provides such integration for the first time and reports on the latest developments in this important field Written in a way that will appeal to researchers across disciplines from graduate level upwards the book sets the agenda for future research in spatial conceptualization and communication Documentation Abstracts ,1994 The IMA Catalogue of Software for Mineralogists International Mineralogical Association.
