Journalistic Writing Knowledge Organiser

most important information given at the beginning

Introductory paragraph

The introductory paragraph is the first paragraph of a newspaper article. It is the most important part of the article as it is the first thing that the reader sees. It should be short and snappy, and it should give the reader a clear idea of what the article is about. It should also be interesting and engaging, so that the reader wants to read on.

Body of newspaper

The body of the newspaper article is the main part of the article. It is where the writer provides the details of the story. It should be written in a clear and concise style, and it should be organized into paragraphs. The writer should use a variety of sentence structures and vocabulary to make the article interesting and engaging. It is also important to use facts and evidence to support the story.

Quote

Quotes are used in newspaper articles to provide evidence and support for the writer's claims. They are usually short statements made by people involved in the story. Quotes can be used to show different perspectives on the story, and they can also be used to highlight key points. It is important to use quotes accurately and to provide context for them.

Picture

Pictures are used in newspaper articles to provide visual evidence and support for the writer's claims. They can be used to show the scene of the story, or they can be used to illustrate a key point. Pictures can also be used to attract the reader's attention and to make the article more interesting and engaging.

Concluding paragraph

The concluding paragraph is the final paragraph of a newspaper article. It is where the writer summarizes the main points of the story and provides a final thought or opinion. It should be short and snappy, and it should leave the reader with a clear idea of what the article is about.

Bias in media

"Media bias" refers to a real or perceived tendency of media such as newspaper articles to approach both the presentation of particular stories, and the selection of which stories to cover, with an unbalanced perspective.
