

Final study guide question and answers

What kind of equilibrium exists and under what conditions? Chemical equilibrium is a dynamic equilibrium between two or more states of matter, where the rates of the forward and reverse reactions are equal.

What happens if you change the conditions? Le Chatelier's principle states that if a system at equilibrium is subjected to a change in concentration, temperature, or pressure, the system will adjust itself to counteract the change.

What happens if you change the concentration of a reactant? Increasing the concentration of a reactant will shift the equilibrium to the right, favoring the products.

What happens if you change the temperature? Increasing the temperature will shift the equilibrium to the right for endothermic reactions and to the left for exothermic reactions.

What happens if you change the pressure? Increasing the pressure will shift the equilibrium to the side with fewer moles of gas.

What happens if you change the volume? Increasing the volume will shift the equilibrium to the side with more moles of gas.

What happens if you change the catalyst? A catalyst speeds up the rate of both the forward and reverse reactions, but it does not change the position of the equilibrium.

What happens if you change the solvent? Changing the solvent can affect the equilibrium constant, especially for reactions involving ions.

What happens if you change the pH? Changing the pH can affect the equilibrium of reactions involving acids and bases.

What happens if you change the ionic strength? Increasing the ionic strength can affect the activity coefficients of ions, which in turn affects the equilibrium constant.

What happens if you change the dielectric constant? Increasing the dielectric constant can affect the equilibrium of reactions involving charged species.

What happens if you change the activity coefficients? Activity coefficients are used to account for non-ideal behavior in solutions.

What happens if you change the standard state? Changing the standard state will affect the standard Gibbs free energy of formation.

What happens if you change the standard enthalpy of formation? Changing the standard enthalpy of formation will affect the equilibrium constant.

What happens if you change the standard entropy of formation? Changing the standard entropy of formation will affect the equilibrium constant.
