The Earth is the universe's only known planet that sustains life. That is why it is also referred to as the living planet. In Unit 1, you also learned that the Sun is the primary source of energy for all types of life and associated processes on Earth.

The Earth as a living system, its components, and their interrelationships will be the emphasis of this Unit. The Earth is described as a geosphere, with four major components: the lithosphere, atmosphere, hydrosphere, and biosphere. You must first master the notion of ecosystem, which we shall cover in Sec. 2.3, in order to comprehend these interrelationships. The notion of biomes will also be discussed. You'll notice that these interrelationships are delicately adjusted as you explore Sec. 2.3. Any disturbance in this delicate balance could result in major environmental issues such as climate change and pollution, among other things. You will learn about such obstacles and how people respond to them.

You will learn about the components that make up the Earth's surface in this unit. The interior of the Earth, its structure, and composition will be covered in the following unit.

These landforms are an element of the geosphere's physical environment. The lithosphere is a favourable environment for a variety of living forms. It's where dirt, silt, sea salts, and nutrients come from. It also helps
