

CHAPTER 7

CASH AND RECEIVABLES

CHAPTER STUDY OBJECTIVES

1. Understand cash and accounts receivable from a business perspective. Companies often have a significant amount of accounts receivable, which requires time and effort to manage and control. Companies strive to ensure that their collection policy is restrictive enough to minimize large losses in the form of uncollectible accounts receivable, while not being so restrictive that it interferes with the ability to attract new customers. Typical accounts receivable-related categories include trade receivables, loans receivable, and nontrade receivables (including items like interest receivable and amounts due from officers, and advances to employees).

2. Define financial assets, and identify items that are considered cash and cash equivalents and how they are reported. Financial assets are a major type of asset, defined as cash, a contractual right to receive cash or another financial asset, an equity holding in another company, or a contractual right to exchange financial instruments under potentially favourable conditions. To be reported as cash, an asset must be readily available to pay current obligations and not have any contractual restrictions that would limit how it can be used in satisfying debts. Cash consists of coins, currency, and available funds on deposit at a bank. Negotiable instruments such as money orders, certified cheques, cashier's cheques, personal cheques, and bank drafts are also viewed as cash. Savings accounts are usually classified as cash. Cash equivalents include highly liquid short-term investments (that is, those maturing three months or less from the date of purchase) that can be exchanged for known amounts of cash and have an insignificant chance of changing in value. Examples include treasury bills, commercial paper, and money-market funds. In certain circumstances, temporary bank overdrafts may be deducted in determining the balance of cash and cash equivalents.

Cash is reported as a current asset in the SFP, with foreign currency balances reported at their Canadian dollar equivalent at the date of the SFP. The reporting of other related items is as follows: (1) Restricted cash: Legally restricted deposits that are held as compensating balances against short-term borrowing are stated separately in current assets. Restricted deposits held against long-term borrowing arrangements are separately classified in non-current assets either in investments or other assets. (2) Bank overdrafts: These are reported in the current liabilities section and may be added to the amount reported as accounts payable. (3) Cash equivalents: This item is often reported together with cash as "cash and cash equivalents."

3. Define receivables and identify the different types of receivables from an accounting perspective. Receivables are claims held against customers and others for money, goods, or services. Most receivables are financial assets. The receivables are described in the following ways: (1) current or non-current; (2) trade or nontrade; and (3) accounts receivable or notes or loans receivable.

4. Account for and explain the accounting issues related to the recognition and measurement of accounts receivable. The entity becomes a party to the contractual provisions of the accounts receivable financial instrument only when it has a legal claim to receive cash or other financial assets.
