Two IB schools (A and B) follow the IB Diploma Programme but have different teaching methods. A research group tested whether the different teaching methods lead to a similar final result.

For the test a group of eight students was randomly selected from each school. Both samples were given a standardised test at the start of the course and a prediction for total IB points was made based on that test; this was then compared to their points total at the end of the course.

Previous results indicate that both the predictions from the standardised tests and the final IB points follow a normal distribution.

It can be assumed that:

- the standardised test is a valid method for predicting the final IB points
 - that variations from the prediction can be explained through the particular circumstances of the student or school.
- a. Identify a test that might have been used to verify the null hypothesis that the predictions from the standardised test are normally distributed. [1]
- b. State why comparing only the final IB points of the candidates from the two schools would not be a valid test for the effectiveness of the two different teaching methods. [1]

The data for school A is shown in the following table.

School A

student number	Gender	Predicted IB points (P)	Final IB points (J)
1	male	43.2	44
2	male	36.5	34
3	female	37.1	38
4	male	30.9	28
5	male	41.1	39
6	female	35.1	39
7	male	36.4	40
8	male	38.2	38
Mean		37.31	37.5

- c. For each student the change from the predicted points to the final points ($J - P$) was calculated. Find
