Data-Driven Decision Making in Fragile Contexts Alexander Hamilton,Craig Hammer,2017-06-16 The need for evidence based decision making at all levels of government is perhaps greatest in fragile settings Data deficiencies contribute to state fragility and exacerbate constraints on the capacity to provide basic services public security and the rule of law The lack of robust good quality data can also have a disabling effect on government efforts to manage political conflict Indeed the lack of data can worsen conflict since violent settings pose substantial challenges to knowledge generation capture andapplication The development of sustainable and professional data literate stakeholders who are able to produce and increase the quality and accessibility of official statistics can help to improve development outcomes Goodquality and reliable statistics are required to track the progress of development policies through the monitoring of performance indicators and targets and to ensure that public resources are achieving results Although reliable data alone cannot have a transformative effect without the right contextual incentives they constitute an essential prerequisite for greater accountability and more efficient decision making Data Driven Decision Making in Fragile Contexts Evidence from Sudanexplores methods and insights for datacollection and use in fragile contexts with a focus on findings from Sudan It begins by posing several questions on the political economy of data and then sets out a framework for assessing the validity reliability and potential impact of data on decision making in fragile settings It then provides insights regarding the challenges associated with data driven decision making in Sudan derived from the 2014 15 United Kingdom s Department for International Development Sudanese household survey Featured are data driven analyses of diverse topics from public service delivery to the interplay of governance trust andstate legitimacy As the data revolution and the advent of the Sustainable Development Goals herald an increasing need to solicit the perceptions and experiences of program beneficiaries the impetus to develop and deploy good quality survey instruments will increase This volume provides an important proof of concept that this type ofendeavor is both feasible and useful in fragile contexts and in combination with other important data collection tools can be effectively utilized to enrich the evidence base of decision making in these settings Children's Additional Language Learning in Instructional Settings Yuko Goto Butler,2025-06-10 This book provides the first comprehensive overview of young children s language learning in pre primary and primary education It collates research to date on language development and pedagogy among children learning a language in addition to their home language s in instructional settings providing readers with a thorough understanding of the topic and directions for further study The book promotes a learner centered approach to research and teaching and encourages critical reflection on how best to conduct research among children It recognizes the substantial diversity of young language learning experiences and pays attention to individual differences and variability in children s language development embracing an ecological perspective sensitive to contextual factors Closing the gap between research and practice each chapter opens with pedagogical or policy related questions explores relevant theories and research findings from instructed second language acquisition and offers discussion questions and recommended reading for further reflection and study This will be invaluable reading for all those who are undertaking research and working with young language learners
