
How does Priestley explore the importance of social class in An Inspector Calls?

By 1945, British society had changed as a result of the two world wars, a period where the working classes had really shown their worth. Between 1945 and 1951, both the NHS and the welfare state had been established. The play, delivered to the 1945 audience, acts as a warning against reverting back to Mr Birling's outdated views (prevalent in 1912), and as a reminder of the ever-evolving political system, and the possibility of overturning the seemingly 'unsinkable' capitalist government and ingrained hierarchy of class in society.

In the play's opening act, Priestley has Birling bathe in his Edwardian hubris and arrogant bourgeoisie delusions: in an after-dinner speech, Birling asserts that there's 'everything to lose and nothing to gain by war' and declares the Titanic is 'unsinkable, absolutely unsinkable'. Exploiting the fact that the play is set in 1912, Priestley places comments steeped in dramatic irony in Birling's mouth: Birling dismisses the likelihood of war ('the Germans don't want war') - the self-evident foolishness of which immediately throws his entire worldview into question, and forces Priestley's anti-war purpose to the audience (indeed, he founded a campaign for nuclear disarmament; he is an anti-war writer).

Furthermore, Priestley is able to instantly discredit Birling's reasoning behind this statement: it would have been well known to the 1945 audience the scandal of World War One, when many businessmen made a fortune out of the war, whilst the lower social classes selflessly sacrificed their lives on the frontline. This could suggest that capitalism can only thrive on war and destruction to build the economy, ruthlessly discarding the lives of the working classes in order to benefit those of the Bourgeoisie. To Priestley this is obviously unfair, and he continues to push his message to the audience later in Birling's same speech. The repetition of 'unsinkable' shortly following crafts the didactic nature of 'An Inspector Calls' and acts as a symbol of Priestley's controversial views. On the one hand, the repetition could simply exist to emphasise Mr Birling's delusions of grandeur and expertise; however, it could also imply a double meaning. Not only was the Titanic seen as 'unsinkable' in 1912, but so was Winston Churchill by 1945. Priestley is perhaps suggesting to the audience that just like the Titanic was sunk, so can capitalism. He implies that the future can only be brighter and, indeed, in the 1945 elections, the great World War leader that was Winston Churchill was 'sunk' and replaced by the labour Prime Minister Clement Attlee - only a success for Priestley and socialism alike.

Later in the play, Priestley uses the construct of Inspector Goole as his proxy to enable the audiences to resonate with the social divisions still present in 1945 and reflect on the difference in class between Eva Smith and the Birling family. In Act 3, the Inspector mentions how there are 'millions and millions and millions of Eva Smiths and John Smiths', implying how the vastness of the working-class contrasts with the select few in power, who control the lives of the many. Priestley may be using this statement to emphasise the overtly classist nature of the capitalist system, making obvious his own socialist views.

Throughout the play, Priestley is able to highlight how this flaw in society exacerbates social differences, as well as the ignorance of the Bourgeoisie. He conveys this through his portrayal of Gerald and the Birlings and their ignorance to the difficult lives of the poor. One example of such class distancing would be when Eric is found to have stolen fifty pounds; a scandal of which Mr Birling feels the need to cover up rather than reclaim the money lost. Juxtaposing the Birlings' affluent lives to the 'young women' - like Eva - who survived by 'counting their pennies'.

Moreover, just before the Inspector leaves the scene, he warns the Birlings (who represent the upper class of 1912) that if they were not to listen, they would 'be taught in fire and blood and anguish'. However, it is not only Goole who holds the Birlings to account, but the entire
