

Evolution & Natural Selection

DOODLE NOTES

GENETIC Evolution

natural selection changes the range of traits in a population - there are 3 ways it can change. Let's look at a moth population that shows

Evolution by natural selection

Describe the theory of natural selection and how the theory was first conceived (thought of).

An English naturalist named Charles Darwin went on a voyage around the world. He noticed that animals in similar environments had similar characteristics. For example, in the Galápagos islands, Darwin observed similar but non-identical species of finches on each island. He noticed that their beaks seemed to be adapted to their food source. After some time thinking and the work of other scientists, Darwin developed his theory of natural selection.

Individuals with favorable traits survive and reproduce, passing on those traits to their offspring. Over time, the population becomes better adapted to its environment.

An example of natural selection!

A population of light brown moths lives in an area of dark wood. They have few birds to eat.	One day a hawk comes to hunt for the common variety.
The hawk eats the light brown moths. The dark moths survive.	The light brown moths are more likely to get eaten - they are the birds' favorite!
A higher proportion of dark moths survive to reproduce.	Over time, the population has changed. Now most of the moths are dark!

GENE FLOW

What is it? Movement of genes in or out of a population. It happens through movement of individuals. It can be the movement of gametes, or the movement of pollen or seeds. This can bring new alleles into a population or change the frequency of existing alleles.

Example:

The Emergence and Evolution of Religion Jonathan Turner, Alexandra Maryanski, Anders Klostergaard Petersen, Armin W. Geertz, 2017-08-10 Written by leading theorists and empirical researchers this book presents new ways of addressing the old question Why did religion first emerge and then continue to evolve in all human societies The authors of the book each with a different background across the social sciences and humanities assimilate conceptual leads and empirical findings from anthropology evolutionary biology evolutionary sociology neurology primate behavioral studies explanations of human interaction and group dynamics and a wide range of religious scholarship to construct a deeper and more powerful explanation of the origins and subsequent evolutionary development of religions than can currently be found in what is now vast literature While explaining religion has been a central question in many disciplines for a long time this book draws upon a much wider array of literature to develop a robust and cross disciplinary analysis of religion The book remains true to its subtitle by emphasizing an array of both biological and sociocultural forms of selection dynamics that are fundamental to explaining religion as a universal institution in human societies In addition to Darwinian selection which can explain the biology and neurology of religion the book outlines a set of four additional types of sociocultural natural selection that can fill out the explanation of why religion first emerged as an institutional system in human societies and why it has continued to evolve over the last 300 000 years of societal evolution These sociocultural forms of natural selection are labeled by the names of the early sociologists who first emphasized them and they can be seen as a necessary supplement to the type of natural selection theorized by Charles Darwin Explanations of religion that remain in the shadow cast by Darwin s great insights will it is argued remain narrow and incomplete when explaining a robust sociocultural phenomenon like religion

Lima-de-Faria,1988 The interpretation of evolution is in a state of upheaval the rapid advancement of Molecular Biology has led into question many of the tenets of Darwinism and neo Darwinism which although valuable approaches at the time they were formulated never fulfilled the criteria demanded by real scientific theories In this lucidly written new book now available in paperback the author presents and discusses the rapid developments in particle physics crystallography and molecular biology and formulates a radically different approach to biological evolution This treatise is not offered as one more new theory but a radically different approach In the author s opinion no real theory of evolution can be formulated at present Selection is not the mechanism of evolution for the simple reason that it cannot be weighed on a balance poured into a vial or measured in specific units Only a material component can be the mechanism of evolution and this must be searched for in the strict physico chemical processes      Valsiner: Handbook of Developmental (c) Psychology Jaan Valsiner Kevin J.
