

Applications of Arc Lengths and Sectors

1. A sector of a circle is a region of the circle bounded by a central angle and the intercepted arc.

As you have seen, the arc length s and the area A of a sector of a circle are both proportional to the central angle θ subtending the sector, and the complete circle. Thus, there are proportional relationships that would be useful provided that you know that a circle's circumference C (perimeter) and area A are proportional to the square of the radius r . This is sometimes given the name of the "square-radius" relationship.

$$\text{Arc Length} = \frac{\theta}{360} \text{ (circumference of circle)}$$

Another way to think about length is to think about how it varies with distance. As you collected data for your table in the previous activity, you discovered that arc length is directly proportional to the circle's circumference, and this relationship can be expressed in terms of r . This relationship can be summarized as follows in terms of any given circle, r , below:

$$\frac{\text{Arc Length}}{2\pi r} = \frac{\text{Degrees of Rotation}}{360}$$

Similarly, you discovered a function that would be useful provided the area could be expressed in terms of an angle of rotation of a circle of radius r .

$$\frac{\text{Area of Sector for Angle of Rotation}}{A} = \frac{\theta}{360} \text{ (degrees of rotation)}$$

As you collected data for your table in the previous activity, you discovered that the arc length s and the area A of a sector are both proportional to the circle's circumference and can be expressed in terms of r . This relationship is summarized graphically for a circle of any given radius, r , below:

$$\frac{\text{Arc Length}}{2\pi r} = \frac{\text{Degrees of Rotation}}{360}$$

Example: (Based on the example from the previous activity.)

1. If the radius of the above circle and both angles θ are both fixed, find the arc length and area of each sector.
