

Question: I read that it was once widely believed that the best thing that you can do during a time of pressure is to "control" your own mind. From that perspective, shouldn't the "control" be "positive"?

Answer: I agree with you that the idea of "controlling" your thoughts is a good one. However, I believe that the best way to "control" your thoughts is to let them go. When you let your thoughts go, you are not "controlling" them. You are simply allowing them to be what they are. This is the only way to truly "control" your thoughts.

Question: How do you know these "negative automatic thoughts" from above are "real"? What happens to your body when you feel that way?

Answer: The "control" of the mind is a very important part of many things we do. However, the "control" of the mind is not the only way to "control" your thoughts. There are many other ways to "control" your thoughts. For example, you can "control" your thoughts by focusing on the present moment. This is the only way to truly "control" your thoughts.

Question: I understand how "controlling" your thoughts is the best way to "control" your thoughts. But you also say that you should not "control" your thoughts. How do you know these "negative automatic thoughts" are "real"?

Answer: Yes, you are.

Question: So through this, can you see how our thoughts can affect our emotions and actions?

Answer: Yes, you are. I agree that it is true that our thoughts can affect our emotions and actions. However, I believe that the best way to "control" your thoughts is to let them go. When you let your thoughts go, you are not "controlling" them. You are simply allowing them to be what they are.

Question: Okay, I understand where you're coming from and what you're trying to say. But how can you understand how our thoughts affect our emotions and actions? It just sounds like what other people would say to make you feel bad.

Answer: The thing is, you are. I agree that it is true that our thoughts can affect our emotions and actions. However, I believe that the best way to "control" your thoughts is to let them go. When you let your thoughts go, you are not "controlling" them. You are simply allowing them to be what they are.

Question: It was good to hear that you want to help yourself to get out of this situation. How do you know that the "control" of your thoughts is the best way to "control" your thoughts?

Answer: Yes, you are.

Question: So now I want you to think of your parents. Do you understand how our thoughts can affect our emotions and actions? It just sounds like what other people would say to make you feel bad.

Answer: Yes, you are.
