when JK Rowling was trying to, ^{put} emphasis on her opinion of not giving up no matter the situation one's in because according to her getting frightened by failure was a huge affair amongst youngsters; she carefully used personal anecdotes to open up and share the ^{memorable} daunting experiences she had to live through just so that the audience would compare their own experiences with hers and would be able to relate to them and would eventually get motivated by how she "scuttled off" when eagerly following her dreams. This surrounded the anecdote she was referring to with a very enthralling mood overall.

Overall theme of her mindset (also resonates with her anecdotes) which is overcoming a challenge via strength.

Making the audience realise how being accountable can lead to developing maturity as adults and how it can direct one's actions and burning desires was carefully illustrated with the usage of the verb "steering". Through this absolutely enthralling metaphor she compared the challenges in one's life with something as powerful as a glacier in front of a ship due to which the ship needs to be ⁱⁿsteered in order to bypass the glacier aka obstacle. This is such a persuasive and inspiring tone as it motivated the students to become as dominant as a ship for being able to "steer" their life's direction and take control.
