

Chemical Reactions & Energy Changes

Passage # 01 From Fireworks to Photosynthesis: The Subtle Science Chemical reactions are everywhere in our lives. From the fireworks that light up the night sky to the photosynthesis that sustains life on Earth, these reactions are the driving force behind many of the most important processes in our world. In this passage, we explore the science of chemical reactions, from the explosive power of fireworks to the life-giving energy of photosynthesis.	Passage # 02 Burn, Respiration, Chemistry in Action Chemical reactions are everywhere in our lives. From the fireworks that light up the night sky to the photosynthesis that sustains life on Earth, these reactions are the driving force behind many of the most important processes in our world. In this passage, we explore the science of chemical reactions, from the explosive power of fireworks to the life-giving energy of photosynthesis.	Passage # 03 Get in Cook! The Magic of Food and Chemistry Passage # 05 The Chemistry of Cooking: Why Heat Transforms Food Cooking is more than just preparing meals; it's a chemical transformation. When heat is applied to food, it triggers a series of chemical reactions that change its texture, flavor, and appearance. In this passage, we explore the science of cooking, from the sizzle of a frying pan to the slow simmer of a soup. We'll discover why heat is so important in the kitchen and how it transforms raw ingredients into delicious meals.	Passage # 04 Bond Breakers and Makers: How Atoms Trade Energy Chemical reactions are the atomic negotiations. Bonds are broken, new ones are formed, and energy is exchanged. Every atom is held together by chemical bonds, which store energy. To start a reaction, energy is often needed to break these bonds. This process absorbs energy and is called endothermic. Once the bonds are broken, atoms rearrange and form new bonds. This step usually releases energy, making it exothermic. The total energy change in a reaction depends on the balance between energy absorbed and energy released. If more energy is released than absorbed, the reaction feels warm or even explosive. If more energy is absorbed, the reaction feels cool. That's why some reactions heat up their surroundings, while others cool them down. In our bodies, breaking down food molecules releases energy that fuels movement and growth. In chemical laboratories, these energy trades are used to create medicines, materials, and fuels. Whether it's cooking, breathing, or launching rockets, bond breaking and making is at the heart of chemistry. It's how atoms trade energy and how the world works.
