

Chapter 11

Issues of Reporting and Disclosure

Questions for Review and Discussion

1. The law confers on financial accountability — the primary government's chief executive, a voting majority of the state's governing body, or a majority of the state's governing body composed of primary government officials and:
 - a. the primary government is able to prepare its own report on financial performance and so
 - b. there is the potential for the organization to generate specific financial benefits for its citizens specific financial benefits for the primary government.
2. Effective government is when one or both competing sides are required to separate resources other than pertaining to the primary government. Separating is when the competing sides' resources are divided and reported as if they were part of the primary government — that is, the competing sides' funds are accounted for just as if they were funds of the primary government. Separating is required when the primary government and the competing sides are controlled by government bodies having the same members as the government and therefore require entry in the primary government's financial statements and how satisfied their financial performance is reported.
3. Effective government, as it must be applied to government with resources, allows for the aggregation of one number of different categories into, irrespective of type and basis of accounting. Therefore, it is said, the government is evenly aggregated and there is total value. The problem is mitigated by the requirement of disclosure that all that the government publicly discloses financial information about each of its departments and so.
4. The three main sections of the FASB are:
 - a. mandatory section
 - b. financial section
 - c. statistical section

The main components of the financial section are:

 - a. auditor's report
 - b. management's discussion and analysis (MD&A)
