Mexican American Youth Organization: A major political organization of Mexican-American youth in Texas, founded at San Antonio in 1967 by founder Jose Angel Gutierrez. Addressed three main needs of Mexican Americans; economic independence, local control of education and political strength and unity through the formation of a third party. Publicly protested poverty and injustices faced by some Hispanics, denouncing incidents of exclusive employment policies and police brutality. Their significance spiked the Chicano movement in Texas as an activist organization that was eager to unite the Mexican American community (The Raza Unida) in social justice for future generations.

1915 ✓
Raids led by Huertistas and Carrancistas
Plan de San Diego: A series of raids led by Huertistas and Carrancistas during 1915 that was a hope among Mexicans to create social unrest and obtain political and economic gains. The goal of these raids is still debated today; to overthrow the south western U.S. government or killing Anglos to return the lands the Mexicans. However; there were few raids that actually took place in Texas that were approached by the Texas Rangers. The significance of these raids inspired Mexican-American social justice movements in Texas, especially after these raids sparked racial casualties that were ruthless and disgraceful.

Although he lost a senate race to LBJ, Tower eventually ran for the same seat in the special election of 1961 when LBJ left for VP.
