Interpreting and Communicating About Standardized Assessments and Achievement

Critical Task Description

Teacher candidates will deliver a report to a student and parent(s)/guardian(s) explaining the content and procedures of (a) standardized test(s) and their relevance for achievement and will interpret student achievement from standardized test results.

Kenneth's Letter

Dear Parents/Guardians of Kenneth,

I hope this letter finds you and your family well. As you may know Kenneth has recently taken the Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test, also known as the FCAT. I am writing this letter to provide you with a little more information on what the FCAT entails and Kenneth's score. As his teacher I feel it is crucial to keep you informed and active in your child's academic development.

Above all I want to thank your student for his hard work and dedication over the school year. It is very impressive that they have continually demonstrated a good outlook, commitment, and true excitement for learning. I am pleased with what he has achieved so far.

When it comes to the FCAT itself I would like to take this opportunity to give you some knowledge as to what the test entails. The FCAT is a test that the students should take annually that is designed to measure their progress in important academic areas. It is a crucial tool for determining how well students grasp and know fundamental subjects and it enables us to identify areas of strength and areas that may require additional attention. The FCAT is also a criterion-referenced assessment which means that Kenneth's scores are measured against a set of fixed and predetermined criteria. In other words, his results are compared with written descriptions of the knowledge that students should have at that particular stage of their academic journeys.

Now, allow me to point out a few noteworthy accomplishments! In the reading section Kenneth achieved a score of 2140. In order for Kenneth to be considered on grade level he needed to achieve a score of 1972, which he has surpassed with flying colors! His confidence band is 2064-2216. This means that if Kenneth were to take the same test again, he would score between a 2064 and a 2216. His score of 2140 landed him in the achievement level 3. In
