

MAXIM High-Frequency Waveform Generator

MAX9339

General Description

The MAX9339 is a high-frequency, precision, self-contained waveform generator designed to generate high-frequency (up to 100MHz), sine, square, and pulse waveforms and a nonreciprocal differential impedance. The self-contained design can be extended over an operating range of 0.1MHz to 200MHz for an external 50Ω load. Accuracy can be improved over an external reference and frequency. The waveform can be varied over a wide range by applying a 1.2Vpp control signal, generating pulse-width modulation (PWM) and the generation of a differential signal at the frequency multiplier and frequency divider. The waveform can be varied over a wide range by applying a 1.2Vpp control signal, generating pulse-width modulation (PWM) and the generation of a differential signal at the frequency multiplier and frequency divider. The duty cycle and frequency conditions are independent.

Wave outputs are through transformer or low impedance or high impedance by setting the appropriate value of the TTL-compatible control signal. The output signal has an impedance of 50Ω or other value which is selected and ground connected. The non-reciprocal impedance can be set at 50Ω or 100Ω.

The TTL-compatible control signal is used to generate the waveform and maintain a 50Ω, duty cycle independent of the duty cycle of the other signals. The impedance can be set at 50Ω or 100Ω. The internal impedance can be set at 50Ω or 100Ω for an external TTL input connected to the output.
