

School dinners from around the world

Finland

Finnish pupils have received free school lunches since 1948. Often a buffet, foods available include fish, soup and veg. Special diets (religious or cultural choices) are catered to.

France

School meals are half-subsidised, and must contain plenty of vitamins & minerals. Kids get a 5-course meal including an appetizer and a cheese plate!

Indonesia

Indonesian Schools receive meals via the UN World Food Programme & the fresh items are provided by the children's parents. Food includes porridge, spinach, coconut milk & beans.

South Korea

School dinners mostly include traditional foods like rice, stuffed sesame leaves, and kimchi. Pupils are often expected to set and clear the table.

USA

31 million US students receive low-cost or free lunches through the USDA; some even get breakfast too. Contents vary from school to school, but fast food is prevalent.

Sweden

Swedish lunches are prepared in a buffet style and mainly consist of potatoes, rice, meat, fish and vegetables. The teachers are also encouraged to eat with the pupils.

Honduras

Honduras is not a wealthy country, so school meals are even more crucial. School meals are simple but nutritious, using beans, corn, and rice porridge.

Chile

The Chilean School Feeding Programme is one of the oldest in South America; poorer schools get more calorific meals. Expect local rice & meat plus fresh fruit, veg & yoghurt.

Brazil

Brazilian law requires schools to source at least 30% of food from local family farmers. This means that students get fresh, nutritious food such as rice, fruit, beans, meat and veg.

China

In China, students tend to get a variety of cheap and traditional foodstuffs. These usually include white rice, green beans, potatoes and fish.
