

Love in the Time of Cholera

INTRODUCTION

BRIEF BIOGRAPHY OF GABRIEL GARCÍA MÁRQUEZ

García Márquez, affectionately nicknamed "Gabó," was raised by his maternal grandparents for the first 32 years of his life in the small town of Aracataca. He eventually moved to live with his father, a pharmacist. García Márquez's grandfather, who held progressive views about politics and great storytelling talents, became a significant influence in young García Márquez's life. García Márquez was then sent away to school in Barranquilla, where he began writing romance poems and comic strips, and later moved to Bogotá, where he completed his secondary studies and studied law. However, García Márquez soon gave priority to his writing and worked as a reporter for a local newspaper in Cartagena—an early job that commenced his long, esteemed career as a journalist. García Márquez never finished his higher studies, instead working as a journalist in various Colombian cities and in Venezuela. In the 1950s, García Márquez published various novels, short stories, and journalistic pieces that brought him national fame as an author and journalist. After spending time as a foreign correspondent in Europe, García Márquez married Mercedes Barcha, with whom he had two children. They ultimately settled in Mexico City, where García Márquez published his emblematic novel One Hundred Years of Solitude in 1967, which won him international recognition. García Márquez continued to publish creative work throughout his life, including his other well-known novel Love in the Time of Cholera in 1985, two memoirs, and several collections. In 2012, García Márquez's brother announced that the author was suffering from dementia. García Márquez died of pneumonia in Mexico City in April 2014.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Love in the Time of Cholera is set in an unnamed city by the Magdalena River that can be loosely identified as Cartagena, Colombia. The novel references various episodes of Colombian history. Colombia's long history of social stratification and wealth disparity (a legacy of colonial rule) are depicted in the differences between the poor, cholera-afflicted life of the people in the slum quarters and the aristocratic families who struggle to maintain their status. Colombia's first book fair in Cartagena in 1849, but countries around the world suffered from various cholera pandemics throughout the 19th century. Cholera causes people to suffer from severe diarrhea, vomiting, and dehydration, leading to mass-scale deaths. It spreads primarily through inadequate treatment of human feces and drinking water, as Dr. Juvenal Urbino mentions in the novel. Love in the Time of Cholera also mentions the various civil wars that are known as La Violencia in Colombia, a 30-year civil war between the Colombian Liberal and Conservative parties, estimated to have cost the lives of some 200,000 people. The fighting took part largely in rural areas, with political leaders and police encouraging impoverished supporters of the Conservative Party to come land from peasant Liberals. Other events mentioned in the story, such as the sinking of the Spanish ship San Amé (which carried passengers met and off the coast of Cartagena), are inspired by historical occurrences.

RELATED LITERARY WORKS

Gabriel García Márquez is known as one of four Latin American novelists famous for launching the rise of Latin American literature in the 1950s and 70s. Other prominent writers were Peruvian Mario Vargas Llosa, Argentine Julio Cortázar, and Mexican Carlos Fuentes. Among these writers, García Márquez—and, in particular, his novel Cien años de soledad (100 Years of Solitude) (1967)—is considered one of the foundational works of magical realism. Magical realism, the book was influenced by both Mexicanism (García Márquez was a fan of Virginia Woolf and William Faulkner) and the Cuban vanguard movement, which embraced both surrealism and the heritage of their island, becoming increasingly politicized in their ideology. Although magic is not explicitly present in Love in the Time of Cholera, magical realism has certain subtle characteristics, none or less present in each work—in particular, an attitude of writing in which supernatural or violent events are presented in a neutral tone by the narrator as though they were mere details of ordinary life. This technique allows writers to comment hidden political criticism—for example, in Gabriel García Márquez's work, criticism of the Chilean military in his native Colombia, U.S. imperialism, and other forms of oppression. Other prominent writers of magical realism around the world are Chilean Isabel Allende, Argentine Jorge Luis Borges, British-Indian Salman Rushdie, and Japanese Haruki Murakami.
