Environmental Biology for Engineers and Scientists David A. Vaccari, Peter F. Strom, James E. Alleman, 2005-10-27 The growth of the environmental sciences has greatly expanded the scope of biological disciplines today's engineers have to deal with Yet despite its fundamental importance the full breadth of biology has been given short shrift in most environmental engineering and science courses Filling this gap in the professional literature Environmental Biology for Engineers and Scientists introduces students of chemistry physics geology and environmental engineering to a broad range of biological concepts they may not otherwise be exposed to in their training Based on a graduate level course designed to teach engineers to be literate in biological concepts and terminology the text covers a wide range of biology without making it tedious for non biology majors Teaching aids include Notes problems and solutions Problem sets at the end of each chapter PowerPoints r of many figures A valuable addition to any civil engineering and environmental studies curriculum this book also serves as an important professional reference for practicing environmental professionals who need to understand the biological impacts of pollution

We Want Land to Live Amy Trauger, 2017-03 We Want Land to Live explores the current boundaries of radical approaches to food sovereignty First coined by La Via Campesina a global movement whose name means the peasant's way food sovereignty is a concept that expresses the universal right to food Amy Trauger uses research combining ethnography participant observation field notes and interviews to help us understand the material and definitional struggles surrounding the de-commodification of food and the transformation of the global food system's political economic foundations Trauger's work is the first of its kind to analytically and coherently link a dialogue on food sovereignty with case studies illustrating the spatial and territorial strategies by which the movement fosters its life in the margins of the corporate food regime She discusses community gardeners in Portugal small scale independent farmers in Maine Native American wild rice gatherers in Minnesota seed library supporters in Pennsylvania and permaculturists in Georgia The problem in the food system as the activists profiled here see it is not markets or the role of governance but that the right to food is conditioned by what the state and corporations deem to be safe legal and profitable and not by what eaters think is right in terms of their health the environment or their communities Useful for classes on food studies and active food movements alike We Want Land to Live makes food sovereignty issues real as it illustrates a range of methodological alternatives that are consistent with its discourse direct action rather than charity market creation or policy changes civil disobedience rather than compliance with discriminatory laws and mutual aid rather than reliance on top down aid Block Scheduling Eol 2000
