ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

Endocrinology: the scientific study of hormones and the endocrine glands

- 1. Growth and development
- 2. Metabolic rate, appetite and reproduction
- 3. Regulation of the immune system and energy balance
- 4. Homeostasis

How it works:

- The hypothalamus sends signals to the pituitary gland which releases various hormones
- The pituitary gland releases hormones into the bloodstream to stimulate target organs
- Each hormone has a specific function in the body and has its own specific target organ
- Each hormone is released by a specific gland
- Each hormone specifically binds to a target cell
- A target cell has receptors on their cell membrane designed to respond to that specific hormone
- When the hormone binds to its receptor, the receptor sends a "lock and key" mechanism
- After the hormone binds to the cell receptor, a chemical chain of events starts leading to a hormone response

Effect: to make cells or part of an organ or system producing a response

ENDOCRINE VS. EXOCRINE GLANDS

Endocrine glands: secrete hormones directly into the bloodstream

Exocrine glands: secrete substances through ducts to the outside of the body

REPRODUCTIVE SYSTEM

Reproductive system: a series of organs that work together to allow the development and growth of offspring in response to hormonal cues in the body

The female system has evolved to:

1. Reproduction
2. Protection
3. Maintenance

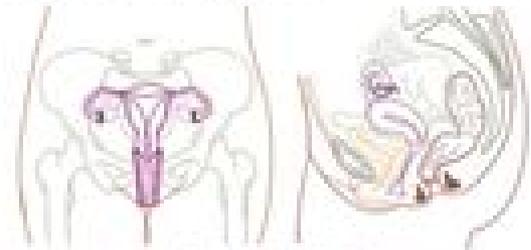

Special genitalia for reproduction:

1. Ovary
2. Uterus
3. Fallopian tube
4. Vagina
5. Vulva

REPRODUCTIVE SYSTEM

The reproductive system functions to produce offspring. Primary sex organs called gonads (ovary & testis) produce gametes (ova and sperm) hormones. Accessory organs include ducts, glands, and external genitalia.

Two categories include the male reproductive system which produces sperm, and the female reproductive system produces egg cells.

Male: produces sperm

Female: produces egg cells

Both: produce hormones
