

The Cardiovascular System

Responsible for transporting blood throughout the body to the cells, which require oxygen and nutrients to survive. Blood is transported by the heart and blood vessels. It is a closed system, meaning that the blood does not leave the vessels.

- 1. Transport oxygen and nutrients to the cells
- 2. Transport waste products away from the cells
- 3. Regulate body temperature
- 4. Fight off infections and diseases
- 5. Maintain fluid balance in the body

The heart is a muscular organ that pumps blood throughout the body. It is divided into four chambers: the right atrium, right ventricle, left atrium, and left ventricle. The right side of the heart pumps deoxygenated blood to the lungs, and the left side pumps oxygenated blood to the rest of the body.

Right Atrium
Receives deoxygenated blood from the superior and inferior vena cava.

Right Ventricle
Pumps deoxygenated blood to the lungs via the pulmonary artery.

Left Atrium
Receives oxygenated blood from the pulmonary veins.

Left Ventricle
Pumps oxygenated blood to the rest of the body via the aorta.

The Central Veins

The central veins are located in the neck and chest. They are responsible for returning blood to the heart from the rest of the body.

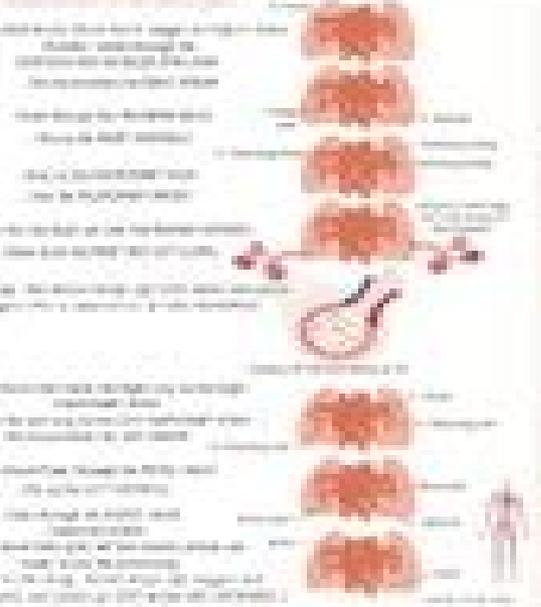

Arteries

Arteries are blood vessels that carry oxygenated blood away from the heart to the rest of the body. They have thick, elastic walls to withstand the high pressure of the heart's pumping action.

Veins

Veins are blood vessels that carry deoxygenated blood back to the heart. They have thinner walls and often have valves to prevent backflow of blood.

Right Side of the Heart

The right side of the heart receives deoxygenated blood from the rest of the body and pumps it to the lungs for oxygenation.

Pulmonary Circulation

Pulmonary circulation is the part of the cardiovascular system that carries oxygenated blood to the body and deoxygenated blood to the lungs.

Arteries and Veins

Arteries and veins are the two main types of blood vessels. Arteries carry oxygenated blood away from the heart, while veins carry deoxygenated blood back to the heart.

Capillaries

Capillaries are the smallest blood vessels in the body. They are responsible for the exchange of oxygen, nutrients, and waste products between the blood and the cells.

Blood Vessels

Heart Rate

Heart rate is the number of times the heart beats per minute. It is regulated by the autonomic nervous system and can vary depending on the body's needs.

ECG (EKG)

White Blood Cells

White blood cells are part of the immune system and are responsible for fighting off infections and diseases.

LEUCOCYTES

Neutrophils are the most common type of white blood cell. They are responsible for fighting off bacterial infections.

Lymphocytes are white blood cells that are involved in the immune response. They are responsible for fighting off viral infections and cancer cells.
