

QUESTION 100000 - Managerial Accounting (14) (10) Chapter 12 Budgeting (10) (10)

The following provides examples of how to use the master budget system to address each of the following issues in creating a budgeted financial statement. Each of the following is an example of the information needed:

- a. Sales budget
- b. Production budget
- c. Direct materials budget
- d. Direct labor budget
- e. Manufacturing overhead budget

Each example includes a description of the budgeting process, which is also used for the financial statements.

Example 1 - Sales Budget

The sales budget is the starting point for the budgeting process. It is used to determine the production budget, which is used to determine the direct materials budget, direct labor budget, and manufacturing overhead budget.

The screenshot shows a software interface for budgeting. At the top, there is a header bar with the text "Budgeting" and "Master Budget". Below this is a grid with multiple columns and rows. The columns represent different budget categories, and the rows represent different time periods or departments. Two red boxes are drawn around specific cells in the grid, highlighting data points. The first red box is located in the row labeled "Sales" and the column labeled "Q1". The second red box is located in the row labeled "Production" and the column labeled "Q1".
