

Unit 8: Study guide – Heart, Blood Vessels, and Circulation of blood

QUESTION 1 – The Heart:

The heart consists of four pumps – two receive blood from the lungs, the other pumps out into the body. The myocardium, the middle layer, is striated, involuntary muscle. It is surrounded by an outer layer of connective tissue, the pericardium, and an inner fibrous layer, the endocardium. The heart is located in the chest.

The four chambers of the heart are the right and left atria and ventricles. The atria are the upper chambers, and the ventricles are the lower chambers. The right atrium receives blood from the body, and the right ventricle pumps it to the lungs. The left atrium receives blood from the lungs, and the left ventricle pumps it to the body. The heart is surrounded by a double-walled sac, the pericardium, which contains a small amount of fluid to reduce friction.

The beating of the heart is controlled by a complex system of electrical impulses. The heart has a natural pacemaker, the sinoatrial node, which sets the rate of the heartbeat. The atrioventricular node delays the impulses for a fraction of a second, allowing the atria to contract fully before the ventricles contract. The bundle of His and the Purkinje fibers carry the impulses to the ventricles, causing them to contract. The heart is surrounded by a double-walled sac, the pericardium, which contains a small amount of fluid to reduce friction. The heart is located in the chest, and its main function is to pump blood throughout the body.
