Diagnostic Evaluation of Articulation and Phonology (DEAP) Data Assessment - Student

The Diagnostic Evaluation of Articulation and Phonology (DEAP) is an assessment that screens for articulation errors and/or phonological disorders and/or mixed errors. This test is one of the ways which the DEAP (including the articulation and phonology subtests) is used to determine the articulation and phonology components.

The Diagnostic Screen involves collection on the single word form intelligibility, or single intelligible words, and the frequency of error and/or mispronunciation in the child's production. The results of this screen can help the clinician to determine what sound substitutions occur in the speech.

The Articulation Screen tests the child's ability to produce all sounds and replacements with that articulation to determine that child's oral and/or articulation skills and ability to produce the five-vowel continuum required for the production of speech.

The Intelligible Assessment involves a series of articulation tasks of the single word form and the ability to produce words with minimal phonological errors in the single word form.

In the Phonology Assessment, the child's phonological skills are evaluated in the word and sentence form.

Finally, the Word Repeating Assessment tests the accuracy of a child's repetition of the phonological word form.
