

Ch. 15: Slavery "Provisional Congress"

Readings: British Abolitionists' View of Slavery at America's Founding, A History of the Nationalist and the Republican Eras, Slavery and the American Revolution, The American Revolution and Slavery

14. Why do the signers of the Declaration of Independence not mention slavery and their own support of slaveholders? Does this indicate either a consensus that slavery was just or a lack of consensus?

Why do the signers of the Declaration not mention that each signer held his own slaveholding? Is support of slaveholders in America then a necessary condition for signing the Declaration? How does the Declaration differentiate the colonists from the British government? How does the colonial self-government that established the political system depend on the other provisions, particularly those that create the government structure and the separation of powers?

15. Why did the British agree to accept the American, signed agreement that the British were instrumental in the revolutionary war? What did the British gain from this?

Do you find it surprising that the British were so quick to accept the American? Why? How did the war with the British end? What did the British gain from this? How did the British gain from this? How did the British gain from this?

16. Why did the Continental Congress not mention slavery and the signers, and how did the Continental Congress not mention slavery and the signers?

The only provision mentioned in the Continental Congress, which gave the Continental Congress the right to do so, was the one that gave the Continental Congress the right to do so.
