Air Quality and Livestock Farming Thomas Banhazi,Andres Aland,Jörg Hartung,2018-06-13 Air quality has a direct influence on health welfare and production performance of livestock as the high concentrations of noxious gases dust and airborne microorganisms are likely to reduce production efficiency and the general welfare of farm animals Long term exposure to particulates in livestock buildings might also affect the respiratory health of farm workers Dust in animal buildings contains many biologically active substances such as bacteria fungi endotoxins and residues of antibiotics as a result of veterinary treatments that are suspected to be hazardous to human health Furthermore air pollutants emitted from livestock buildings can reduce air water and soil quality and can potentially undermine the health of nearby residents Airborne emissions include ammonia methane nitrous oxide particulates like dust and microorganisms In addition other potentially harmful substances such as heavy metals antibiotic residues and components of disinfectants might be also emitted from livestock building that are potentially damaging to ecosystems In this book key aspects of agricultural air quality such as monitoring managing and reducing airborne pollutants in and around livestock facilities are reviewed Features addressing the raising awareness of the importance of optimal health and welfare for livestock species with contributions from international specialists and researchers providing up to date information for professionals involved in modern animal producti This book will be useful for farming professionals academics students policy makers business leaders regulatory bodies and agricultural consultants

Sustainable Agriculture Christine Jakobsson,2012 The Chemical Engineer ,2009 Issues in Science and Technology ,2016 Holt Environmental Science Holt, Rinehart and Winston Staff,Karen Arms,Holt, Rinehart, and Winston, inc,1996-01 Our environmental problems are huge and they require careful attention and action The twenty first century will be a crucial time in human history a time when we must find solutions that allow people on all parts of our planet to live in a clean healthy environment and have the resources they need for a good life

p 5 Holt Environmental Science Karen Arms,2000 Iron Age Fortification Beside the River Lark Tim Havard,Timothy Havard,Mary Alexander (Post-excavation manager),Ray Holt,2019 Excavations by Cotswold Archaeology at Mildenhall produced evidence for human activity from the Late Bronze Age to the medieval period A Late Bronze Age waterhole backfilled with domestic refuse was excavated on the higher ground above the floodplain of the River Lark The Middle Iron Age was a period of intense activity on the site when a pair of massive ditches defined the eastern part of an enclosure possibly built to dominate the crossing point of the River Lark A third ditch of comparable size may date to the Middle or Late Iron Age Numerous pits were found inside the enclosure and a pair of very large post settings were located between the paired ditches A possible focus for settlement beyond the excavated area was suggested by the greater density of pits towards the west The ditches fell out of use before the Roman period when a farmstead occupied the higher ground In this period the flood plain was utilised with a series of field ditches although the area was prone to flooding in the later Roman period Throughout the Saxon period the higher ground was farmed and use of the flood plain was limited by the wet environment The evidence suggests there was a process of deliberate land reclamation on the floodplain during the medieval period after which the area was divided into fields On the higher ground a large ditch running north to south may have marked the medieval town boundary but this association is uncertain Excavated evidence from this period represented activities undertaken on the periphery of settlement including crop processing animal husbandry and iron working A well preserved kiln base may have been used for the production of lime using chalk quarried from the edge of the higher ground There was a rapid decline in use of the area from the 14th century onwards and it remained farmland until recent times There was good preservation of environmental evidence from all periods and the sizeable assemblages of animal bone and crop waste allowed comparisons to be made in farming practices over time The assemblage of decorated Middle Iron Age pottery from the site is the largest found in the region to date The Software Encyclopedia ,1986
