Study guide for Exam 1

Start Here

Please review this study guide carefully. It is a study guide in the full sense of the term. Here are the steps I suggest for studying for the exam.

1. Get your bearings
 - a. Begin early. You should start studying for this exam at least three days in advance.
 - b. Review the Background and Reminder sections below.
 - c. Read the section, then reread the grading criteria and review the bank of readings.
2. Gather your materials
 - a. Review the PowerPoints, your notes, and annotations. Virtually all of the important concepts are addressed in the materials on Blackboard.
3. Focus and draft
 - a. Look for connections between the readings to anticipate potential questions.
 - b. Draft your own responses to questions, based on the PowerPoints and your notes.
 - c. Re-read sections of the readings, and refine or correct your essay responses.
4. Fine-Tune
 - a. Consult others and give feedback to one another on your responses.
 - b. Re-read the criteria for excellent responses.
 - c. Develop acronyms or other mnemonic devices to remember your responses for the day of the exam.

Background

There are two important things for you to know about my exams. First, like the reading assignments and journals, I see exams as both an invitation to think sociologically and an assessment of that work. As I write the study guide, I'm less focused upon evaluating what you already know than encouraging you to see new connections in our readings. So, even excellent students won't immediately know the answers to the themes on the study guide. I trust that, as you review the readings, PowerPoints, and other class materials, you'll find that you have the concepts to address them effectively.

Reminders

1. On the day of the exam, you should arrive ready to complete the exam without leaving the room. You must then submit your exam prior to leaving the classroom for any reason. If this is not reasonable for medical reasons, please let me know before the day of the exam. You are responsible for making sure that your cell phone is never used, and that your study materials are not visible to you or to anyone else in the classroom.
2. Please communicate with me if you have registered with Accessibility Services at NWC for specific academic accommodations. I am happy to communicate with you about how to best approach exams for this course.
3. This exam will follow NWC's commitment to academic integrity, as expressed in the Student Handbook.
