Financing Higher Education Worldwide D. Bruce Johnstone, Pamela N. Marcucci, 2010-06-07 No issue in higher education is as salient or as controversial as finance. As demand for higher education around the world grows, so do the costs associated with it, especially as governments shoulder less of the burden. Tuition fees rise and student loan debt grows. Who pays for these surging costs? Who should pay? D. Bruce Johnstone and Pamela N. Marcucci examine the universal phenomenon of cost sharing in higher education where financial responsibility shifts from governments and taxpayers to students and families. They find that growing costs for education far outpace public revenue streams that once supported it. Even with financial aid and scholarships defraying some of these costs, students are responsible for a greater share of the cost of higher education. Featuring comprehensive economic and policy data, the authors' international comparative approach shows how economically diverse countries all face similar cost sharing challenges. So, who should pay for higher education? While cost sharing is both politically and ideologically debated, Johnstone and Marcucci contend that for almost all countries it is imperative for the financial health of colleges and universities, bringing better efficiency, equity, and responsiveness. Financing Higher Education Worldwide combines sophisticated economic explanations with sensitive political and cultural analyses of the financial pressures facing higher education throughout the world. Funding Higher Education in Sub-Saharan Africa D.

Teferra, 2013-10-08 Virtually all countries in the world are struggling to provide the necessary resources to Higher Education. The challenges are particularly complex for economically poor countries in Africa, which have recorded massive expansion in the past decade. This book analyzes the state of funding and financing higher education in Sub-Saharan Africa. Higher Education Financing in East and Southern Africa Pundy Pillay, 2010-07-12 This nine-country study of higher education financing in Africa includes three East African states: Kenya, Tanzania, and Uganda; five countries in southern Africa: Botswana, Lesotho, Mozambique, Namibia, and South Africa; and an Indian Ocean island state, Mauritius. Higher Education Financing in East and Southern Africa explores trends in financing policies, paying particular attention to the nature and extent of public sector funding of higher education, the growth of private financing, including both household financing and the growth of private higher education institutions, and the changing mix of financing instruments that these countries are developing in response to public sector financial constraints. This unique collection of African country case studies draws attention to the remaining challenges around the financing of higher education in Africa, but also identifies good practices, lessons, and common themes. Cost Sharing in Public Higher Education Institutions in Ethiopia with Special Emphasis on Addis Ababa and Adama Universities Wanna Leka, Desalegn Chalchisa, 2012 The main purpose of this study was to investigate the impact of cost sharing schemes in enhancing revenue generation in public higher education in Ethiopia in order to improve the quality of the teaching and learning environment. Furthermore, the study has attempted to assess problems, challenges experienced by students as well as other government bodies related to cost sharing schemes. To this effect, both quantitative and qualitative research approaches were used
