	External Ear The external ear consists of the pinna (auricle) and the ear canal. The pinna is the visible part of the ear that collects sound waves and directs them into the ear canal. The ear canal leads to the eardrum (tympanic membrane).	Middle Ear The middle ear is located behind the eardrum and contains three small bones: the malleus, incus, and stapes. These bones vibrate in response to sound waves, amplifying the sound and transmitting it to the inner ear.	Internal Ear The internal ear is located deep within the skull and contains the cochlea and the vestibular system. The cochlea is responsible for hearing, and the vestibular system is responsible for balance and spatial orientation.	Common ENT Disorders Common ENT disorders include otitis media (middle ear infection), sinusitis (inflammation of the sinuses), allergic rhinitis (hay fever), and otitis externa (ear infection). These conditions can cause symptoms such as ear pain, hearing loss, and nasal congestion.	ENT Examination The ENT examination is a physical exam of the head, neck, and throat. It includes inspecting the ears, nose, and throat, and performing a laryngoscopy to visualize the larynx and pharynx. The examination is performed by an ENT specialist or a trained medical professional.	ENT History The ENT history is a detailed account of the patient's symptoms and medical history. It includes information about the onset and duration of symptoms, associated symptoms, and any previous treatments. The history is used to identify potential causes and guide the physical examination.	ENT Physical Exam The ENT physical exam is a systematic examination of the head, neck, and throat. It includes inspecting the ears, nose, and throat, and performing a laryngoscopy. The physical exam is used to identify signs of disease and to guide further diagnostic testing. Common differential diagnoses for ear pain include otitis media, otitis externa, and temporomandibular joint dysfunction.	ENT Management The ENT management plan is a set of interventions designed to treat the patient's symptoms and address the underlying cause. It may include medical treatments such as antibiotics, decongestants, and corticosteroids, as well as surgical treatments such as ear surgery and sinus surgery.
	Nasal Cavity The nasal cavity is the space inside the nose. It is lined with mucous membranes and contains the olfactory epithelium, which is responsible for the sense of smell. The nasal cavity is divided into two halves by the nasal septum.	Sinuses The sinuses are air-filled cavities in the skull that drain into the nasal cavity. They include the maxillary, ethmoid, sphenoid, and frontal sinuses. Sinusitis is an inflammation of the sinuses, which can cause symptoms such as facial pain, nasal congestion, and purulent nasal discharge.	Pharynx The pharynx is the part of the throat at the back of the mouth. It is a muscular tube that serves as a passageway for food and air. The pharynx is divided into three parts: the nasopharynx, oropharynx, and laryngopharynx.	Common ENT Disorders Common ENT disorders include sinusitis, allergic rhinitis, and laryngitis. These conditions can cause symptoms such as nasal congestion, facial pain, and hoarseness. Allergic rhinitis is caused by an allergic reaction to environmental allergens. The examination is used to identify signs of disease and to guide further diagnostic testing.	ENT History The ENT history includes information about the patient's symptoms and medical history.
